Sad story of my tortured soles,
My past has been a sense of grief,

BANQUET
To the Lieut.-Governor.

Those who attended the banquet held in the Queen's Hotel on last Wednesday in honor of His Honor Lieut. Governor Mackintosh enjoyed a rich treat in every sense of the word. About one hundred and fifteen sat down to an ample repast provided for the occasion by mine host of the Queen's, who is the right man in the right place for getting up a good table.

At the close of the repast His Worship Mayor Davis opened the meeting by proposing a toast to Her Majesty the Queen, which was heartily responded to by the company singing God save the Queen.

His Worship then proposed a toast to the Governor-General of Canada to which the company responded by singing, "He's a jolly good fellow."

Hon Mr Justice McGuire then in another speech proposed the toast of the evening, "Our Guest." Mr. Justice McGuire in proposing this toast remarked that from personal acquaintance he knew the Lieut. Governor to be a man of importance. He had occupied various positions of trust invariably with energy, industry and activity. And from what he knew of the man he firmly believed that he would use that energy for the benefit of these Territories Everyone who knows Lieut. Governor Mackintosh will corroborate what I say that he will not be only a figure head, but will use his talents in our behalf, therefore I propose the health of Lieut.-Governor Mackintosh.

Lieut.-Governor Mackintosh in rising to respond was greeted by a perfect storm of cheers. When order was restored, His Honor expressed his pleasure in meeting the people of Prince Albert, and said he had been around and visited the schools and court house. He accepted the honors paid him not as personal, but as the representative of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen. He came through the invitation of Mr. Justice McGuire, and was glad he came as by so doing he became acquainted with the respected mayor Mr. Davis. He would advise the people of Prince Albert to do away with faction, and unite together for the common good. Greater gentlemen than he had visited Prince Albert, Mr. Laurier for instance, also Lord Aberdeen; but assured his audience that no man had taken a deeper interest in the Northwest than himself and advised his hearers that if they wanted the prosperity of the country, they would lay aside all differences and work together. He gave a glowing eulogy on Mr. Macdowall our worthy member of Parliament. He then adverted to the wonderful fertility of the Northwest and gave a statistical account of the wheat, barley, potatoes, horses, cattle and sheep raised in this part of the country. In 1806 this place was only an Indian Mission and the first white child born in this country, was born at Prince Albert. The name he thought, was Nisbet. He was of the opinion that we wanted better railway facilities and the people should be a unit in securing it. Especially we should have the M. & N. W. Railway here and assured his hearers he would use all his influence in assisting them in the matter. He pointed out the advantages we possessed in Canada in comparison with the United States and that we should be proud of our country in that respect. We in spite of the carelessness of Charles II. and the Ashburton treaty—have still the greater part of North America, and with the energy of our people we will have the greatest country in the world for agricultural products. He would, in conclusion, express himself in favor of provincial autonomy and would wish the people to take more interest in public affairs. He would like to see the flag of Great Britain and the Dominion of Canada on every school house in the land and every scholar ought to study the history of our country and of our Empire. The honorable gentleman closed by remarking that he would do his utmost for the welfare of the people of the Northwest. (Loud and prolonged cheers).

Mr. Justice McGuire then proposed a toast to the Senate and House of Commons remarking that our form of Government was vastly superior to that of the United States in that we could get rid of an obnoxious government in a very short time, whereas in the United States their government was there for four years and could not be ejected during that time, no matter what they did.

Mr. D. H. Macdowall, who was received with loud cheers. Said that although the Northwest Territories was equal in size to Great Britain, yet he was the only one to represent this great country, and asked why this should be so. The House of Commons was composed of wise men to whom honestly we owe the moneys we receive for our improvements. The Senate was useful in its place in preventing hasty legislation, but in the matter of finance this is the province of the House of Commons. When this was a poor place with its scattered people the House of Commons who stepped in to our aid and granted us money to enable carry on our improvements. He hoped that the day was not far distant when this country would have a larger representation in the Federal Parliament. He had great faith in this country, and he hoped the people would lay aside all petty differences and unite heart and hand for the common good. We have a rich inheritance in this country, and he hoped that its destinies would be guided by wise councils. He noted that before long we would have another railway if settlers and in having that he was convinced that there was a great future before us. He very much wished to impress upon his audience the many advantages and perfect safety we enjoyed in comparison to what the people of the republic south of us possessed. He hoped that we would bear in mind always that our great country was part and parcel of the mightiest Empire on earth, and that we inherit the freedom and liberties which is the inherent property of every British subject. He hoped that no petty trails would retard the progress of the common country. (The honorable gentleman took his seat amidst prolonged applause.

The next was a song from Mr. Gray.

Mr. Galbraith proposed the health of Mr. Haultain and other members of the Northwest Assembly.

Mr. Haultain in reply made a very good speech setting forth the work of the Assembly in the past and paid a high eulogy to the Government of Canada in comparison with that of our neighbors to the south.

At the close of Mr. Haultain's speech a song was rendered by Mr. Brooks.

Mr. Galbraith then proposed a toast to the Northwest Assembly.

Mr. Betts, M.L.A. in reply expressed his pleasure in seeing His Honor the Lieut. Governor in Prince Albert and also pleased to see Mr. Haultain and was glad to be able to say that the Assembly was as true as steel to the interest of the people. For himself he was glad to say that he did his part in framing and carrying out the constitution of the country. As for Mr. Thos McKay he regretted his absence in the Assembly, but hoped to see him occupying a higher position in the near future (Mr. Betts was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering).

The next was a song from Mr. Haultain.

Mr. J. L. Reid, M.L.A., the newly elected member for Prince Albert West was glad to see the Lieut.-Governor here to-night. He was also glad to see his friend Mr. Thos. McKay as one of his best friends and expressed a hope that he would see him appointed to the Senate before long, he being the fittest man for the position.

Mr. Meyers spoke a few words and was glad to be in such a worthy assembly as was here to-night, but would not make a speech as it was time to join the ladies at the Town Hall where the dance was to commence.

A vote of thanks was then proposed by His Honor to Mayor Davis for his attendance on this occasion.

Mayor Davis briefly replied, when the company sang God save the Queen after which most of the party adjourned to the Town Hall where dancing was kept up until the "wee sma' hours" of the morning It was acknowledged by those present that this was the best banquet ever held in Prince Albert.

Buckwheat Straw for Fodder.

Not many of our breeders have much confidence in buckwheat straw as a food for prize animals. Yet many beasts would thrive well on buckwheat straw and what they can pick up on the barn yard, if given "DICK'S BLOOD PURIFIER," because it gives good health, good appetite, and good digestion. Try a box on your horse which is not thriving.

The January number of "The Canadian Magazine" has a large variety of excellent and entertaining reading matter and is well illustrated. O. A. Howland, M.P.P., gives an interesting article entitled "The Fourth Century of Canadian History." G. Mercer Adam discusses charmingly British Novel and Novelists of the Last Quarter of a Century. Frank Blake of Toronto Observatory, speculates on the Condition of Mar and Jupiter now prominent objects of the heavens. The aged Mrs. Traill so familiar long ago, from her charming description of backwoods' life in Canada and as one of the brilliant sisterhood of the Strickland Isells in "An Indian Maiden's Grave" on a pathetic story of Central Ontario. M.A. Leith Wright contributes a valuable paper on "Decorative Needle Work," and J. E. Wetherall, in a full, impartial, and appreciative style, criticizes F. G. Scott's new book of poems The illustrated articles are, a prose poem, "In the Land of Shadows," by Keppell Strange; "Behind the Reading Desk," by Thomas O'Hagan The Royal Military College" illustrated by Frederic Falls; "How I Killed my First Moose," an article which every sportsman will appreciate, by C. H. Gooderham; and "The Canadian Themistocles" an article in which W. F. Maclean, M.P. with a bold hand, draws a remarkable parallel of the character and methods of Sir John Macdonald and the celebrated Grecian statesman. "Crumbs," by H. Cameron Nelles Wilson, and "My Dead Self" a strange story of a man attending his own funeral, by R. F. Dixon, conclude the contributions to fiction. "Where Thame Windeth," by Keppell Strange, is in quaint and charming verse. "Hand car No. 243," by Allan Sullivan, is a spirited bit of dialect poetry, and Philip Lawdenayte's original collection of "Curious Epitaphs," makes exceedingly interesting reading. Altogether the January number of our national review and magazine is one of the most interesting publications of the month. Published by the Ontario Publishing Co., Ltd., Toronto $2 50 per annum.

PRINCE ALBERT, FEB. 5, 1895.

The visit of Lieut Governor Mackintosh to Prince Albert on Wednesday last was another pleasing landmark in the history of this town. We never had the pleasure of meeting His Honor before, but from what we have seen of him, we have an idea that he is just the kind of a man that is wanted in the country while it is now in the embryotic state, which needs a guiding hand to mould its future destinies. For we, in the course of events, remain much longer in the apparent state of infancy which we have hitherto been placed. Before long whether we like it or not we must drift into provincial autonomy, and take our place as a Province of our Dominion Federation. While in this rudimentary state which is, we trust, drifting us on to better things we have faith in the wise council and long experience of His Honor, that whatever changes may come, our interests are safe in his hands, and in the hands of those whom we have chosen to represent us. We may say that we have confidence in Mr. Betts that he will do his duty in future as he has done in the past, and although Mr. Reid is a new hand, he has got a level head and we are confident that he will make our interests his own. Therefore we are truly happy to see the Lieut.-Governor amongst us together with some of the members of the Northwest Assembly, and were glad to see the unanimous and hearty manner in which His Honor was received by the people of Prince Albert.

As may be expected from the source whence it comes, Mayor Davis comes under no small share of blame in connection with the little tempest in a teapot which took place when the people of Prince Albert met to consult how His Honor the Lieut. Governor was to be received here. It would seem that fault has been found with the mayor for the part he took in the controversy; but we think that the croaking of our contemporary on that head does not amount to much. Mayor Davis, as is well known, has a pretty broad pair of shoulders which are well able to bear all the fault finding which can be heaped upon them from that source. Again, considering the respectable turn out of our worthy citizens to that banquet, and the cordial greeting accorded the Mayor by our distinguished guests on that occasion, as well as by the citizens of Prince Albert, we are of the opinion that Mayor Davis can well afford to treat the petty spleen of one or two disappointed individuals with magnanimous silence. Every community no matter how small, has, we are sorry to say some disgruntled individuals in their midst, who, unless everything is run according to their crotchety ideas, are apt to grumble like a boy with a very sore head; but money the result was the same, the money remained in the country; and more than that, the importation of goods by ox cart gave employment to a considerable number of people giving them an opportunity of providing for themselves and their families. All this is now reversed; the last cent is wrung from our business men to pay an exorbitant freight tariff, causing a yoke to hang on their necks which they are not able to bear. So that between paying cash for their goods and a high railway rate the merchant has very hard lines to travel in order to make both ends meet. While at the same time the money thus scraped together is taken out of the country never to be seen again. This is bad enough; but still worse, there is no money coming in to take the place of that going out. On account of our distance from the central points of commerce, and the enormous railway charges we are unable to export our agricultural products with any chance of competing with other districts more favorably situated. The consequence of all this will be that if relief is not granted in some way or another before long this fine country will, we are afraid, be reduced to a state of bankruptcy. This is no doubt some will think, a pessimist view; but we cannot see any other result if things continue as they are at present.

REPLY-PAID.

A Good Suggestion in the Way of Postal Cards.

The postmaster general states in his annual report that, upon the proposition of the United States, it was agreed by the delegates of the postal union at their recent meeting in Vienna that every country should supply the public with a reply-paid postal card. Such cards have been in use in Austria for many years, and would be economical and convenient in domestic as well as in foreign correspondence. They are composed of two unseparated postal cards, folded in the form of a single card, and need no other fastening.

A correspondent can insure a correctly addressed and probably prompt answer by writing his full address on the reply fold of the card before mailing it; the card, on its first journey, being folded so as to cover the reply address. The receiver has simply to write his answer on the reply card, tear it off the inquiry card, and remail it.

If one does not care to preserve the inquiry or to write a long letter, the cards need not be separated. In that case, a reply perfectly intelligible, unequivocal and binding for all business purposes, may be written in one or two words, in answer to a direct question.

The words "Yes," or "No," or "Forty," or "41 Temple Place," or "Boston," or "Smith & Jones," or "3 per cent.," or any other short replies, signed with initials or full name, without any heading of place or date, would, in connection with the attached inquiry card, convey as full and definite an answer, and show as plainly when, where and by whom it was written, as an answer on an ordinary card or letter that contains, besides place, date and address, a summary of the inquiry to which it is a reply.

The first reply-paid postal card received by the writer of this article traveled a distance of six thousand seven hundred miles. It was mailed by Yosef Bernhaupt, Post-Direktor at Beyroot, Syria, and was written in Volapuk, the new universal language. It bore this message: "Spodalaads gesedik sibinons in Lostan ya yelis modik," which means, "Reply postal cards have been in use in Austria for many years."

IN THE SENATE.

SENATOR VOORHEES wears a 7¾ silk tile and has the largest head in the senate.

GEN. GORDON has aged considerably in the last few years but he is still one of the most distinguished looking men in the senate. He has a tall, straight figure and carries himself like the soldier he is.

SENATOR WALTHALL is perhaps one of the most regular men in his habits in the senate. He never keeps late hours. Promptly at nine o'clock he retires, but he is awake and sipping a hot cup of coffee by four a. m.

THE richest of the new senators is Felton, of California, who is said to have one million to Stanford's three. He was a poor boy at the time of the discovery of gold in California and made his money in mining.

STATE EXHIBITS.

One of the Most Interesting Features of the World's Fair.

To an American one of the most interesting features of the world's fair of 1893, as it was also of the centennial exhibition of 1876, will be the exhibit made of the respective states of the union. Every state is likely to make an appropriation to set forth its own peculiar products, and most of the states will be represented by special buildings or pavilions, each of which will in its construction and in its contents be characteristic of the state which erects it.

At the centennial exhibition, says the Youth's Companion, thirty-seven states were represented in one way or another, for though Colorado was admitted to the union in 1876, and is therefore called the centennial state, it was not admitted in season to place it among the states which were represented at Philadelphia.

At the world's fair of 1893 at Chicago at least forty-four states will be represented; perhaps the number will be larger.

There is so much diversity among the states that no two pavilions and no two exhibits need be alike if each is thoroughly characteristic of the state. Though Massachusetts and Connecticut, Indiana and Illinois, Oregon and Washington lie side by side there is in each case a considerable difference in many respects one from the other—a sufficient difference to be distinctly reflected in an exhibit.

In respect to products and outward features the difference between distant states, as, for instance, between California and Vermont or between Florida and Montana, is as great as the differ-

Simply Awful

Worst Case of Scrofula the Doctors Ever Saw

Completely Cured by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old I had a scrofulous sore on the middle finger of my left hand, which got so bad that the doctors cut the finger off, and later took off more than half my hand. Then the sore broke out on my arm, came out on my neck and face on both sides, nearly destroying the sight of one eye, also on my right arm. Doctors said it was the Worst Case of Scrofula they ever saw. It was simply awful! Five years ago I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Gradually I found that the sores were beginning to heal. I kept on till I had taken ten bottles, ten dollars; did I think of what a return I got for that investment? A thousand per cent! Yes, many thousand. For the past 4 years I have had no sores. I Work all the Time. Before, I could do no work. I know not what to say strong enough to express my gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for my perfect cure." GEORGE W. TURNER, Farmer, Galway, Saratoga county, N. Y.

HOW IS THIS?

Something new even in these days of many month premium offers, it is the latest effort of Stafford's Magazine, a New York monthly of home and general reading.

The proposition is to send the Magazine one year for one dollar, the regular subscription price, and in addition to send each subscriber fifty-two complete novels during the twelve months; one each week.

Think of it. You receive a new and complete novel, by mail, post paid, every week for fifty-two weeks, and in addition you get the magazine once a month for twelve months, all for one dollar. It is an offer which the publishers can only afford to make in the confident expectation of getting a hundred thousand new subscribers. Among the authors of the coming series are Wilkie Collins, Walter Besant, Mrs. Oliphant, Mary Cecil Hay, Florence Marryat, Anthony Trollope, A. Conan Doyle, Miss Braddon, Captain Marryat, Miss Thackery and Jules Verne. If you wish to take advantage of this unusual opportunity send one dollar to Stafford's Magazine one year. Your first copy of the magazine and your first number of the fifty-two novels (one each week) which you are to receive during the year will be sent you by return mail. Remit by P.O. Order, registered letter or express.

TOWN TOPICS,

The Journal of Society,

(32 PAGES.) NEW YORK. (THURSDAY.)

Is universally recognized as the most complete weekly journal in the world.

Its "Sanderings" columns are inimitable. Its society news, especially of the doings of the 4000 of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and all over the world, is not equalled by any newspaper. Its Financial Department as authority with all bankers and brokers. Its "Literary Show"—notes on current literature—is by the cleverest of reviewers. Its "Afield and Afloat" makes it the most interesting paper for all lovers of sport—yachting, football, rowing, shooting, fishing, etc. Its "On the Turf" excels all other racing notes. Its burlesques, poems and jokes are the cleverest. Its stories are by the best writers—among them Amélie Rives, F. Marion Crawford, Julian Hawthorne, Edgar Fawcett, Gilbert Parker, Mary J. Hawker ("Jeanie Falconer"), Barry Pain, Paul Bourget, Rudyard Kipling, Ambrose Bierce, etc. etc., and are, even if a trifle risqué, yet always clever, bright and pretty, without coarseness or anything to offend the most refined and moral woman. In addition to all this there is each week a supplement, printed in colors, of some man eminent in his walk of life.

Tales From Town Topics

In the recent reductions made in N. W. M. Police, we regret to see the name of Supt. Norman amongst those whose services have been dispensed with. Capt Norman has spent many, and the best years of his life, in the service, and we hope yet to see that he is not to be entirely forgotten.

On Sunday evening last, at St. Alban's church, the pastor, Rev. Moore, preached a very able sermon on the subject of "What is Temperance?" The rev. gentleman was listened to attentively, throughout, by a large congregation, and evidently voiced the sentiments of the majority of those present.

The commission for taking information regarding excessive freight rates arrived here last Tuesday, and consisted of P. S. Archibald, H. H. Schaefer, Moncton; W. Pearce, Calgary, W. H. Several business men of the town gave evidence in the matter and with the Board of Trade, we have been informed made out the strongest case that had at that time came before the commission.

Rev. T. Clark, late of the Industrial School, Battleford, has gone to Montreal, where he will consult physicians with regard to his eyes, which have troubled him of late years. Before leaving, the rev. gentleman was presented with a complimentary address by the pupils and staff of the school. A purse of $160 was presented Mr. Clark by the residents of the town, as a token of their good wishes. Mr. Clark will return to Battleford in about two months time, where he will resume his duties as a clergyman in that district.

At a meeting of the quarterly official board of the Methodist Church held Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 5th, 1895, a motion was carried unanimously expressing their appreciation of the efficient and faithful services of their pastor, Rev. W. A. Cooke, B.A., during the past three years, and gave him a unanimous invitation to remain for another year. It also recognized the faithful work in church and Sunday School by his estimable wife during her short stay with them since last July.

The curlin' game has been well patronized during the week, the Scoten bonnets given by Mr Gunn being the chief attraction. The games were all good and exciting, especially the concluding one between Russell and Borthwick, which resulted in favor of Russell's team, by a majority of three shots. Borthwick's team deserve great credit, for their excellent play, it being composed of three new players, besides being Mr. Borthwick's first experience as a skip. "Dicks Blood Purifier" is the best of all the condition powders I ever used. It makes a horse thrive and feel well, improves his coat and keeps him perfectly clean in the legs, no matter how long he stands in the stable? I gave half of the first box to a gentleman who had a fine trotting stallion that had swollen in the legs, and had scratches from being out of condition, and in a few days his legs were perfectly clean, and the cracks healed rapidly.

The greatest papers in Great Britain and the United States freely acknowledge the wonderful merit of the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal. The Family Herald is a great newspaper and a great family paper, but it is more than that, it is one of the greatest authorities in the world on cheese, butter, general dairying, and general farming. How a progressive, up-to-date farmer can do without the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal is hard, indeed, to understand.

The Manitoba Free Press in speaking of the Uxbridge Piano says: They are genuine works of art, and reflect the highest credit upon the firm which has produced them. The old style of upright pianos is thrown into the shade. The Uxbridge Piano has a continuous book rack which will be appreciated in the playing of duets; sitting down to the piano the performer touches a lever and the keyboard is uncovered, and the hinges of the lid turn out of sight, and the instrument presents the same artistic appearance when open as when shut. The Organs manufactured by the Uxbridge company have been in use for over twenty years, and require no special description as they are so well-known and liked in the homes of the thousands over the whole world However, the company is manufacturing a six Oct. Organ in Piano case which is having a wonderful sale. The Pianos made by the Uxbridge Piano Co. are a credit to Canadian enterprise, being equal in tone, durability and finish to the best American.

BAGPIPES are generally ascribed to Scotland, where they have been in use for a long time, but it was an instrument upon which the ancient Greeks and Romans played.

"TOWN ARTISTS" are rare even among well-known performers, so that Padewski's ability to distinguish "each separate set of vibrations that goes to make up that variable quality we call tone" is, perhaps, the most marvelous attribute of his genius.

"It is a puzzle to me," writes Rubenstein in his recently published reminiscences, "that music, of all the creations of the mind of man, the noblest, most beautiful, most refined, and spiritual is so unattainable by woman, who is a compound of all these qualities."

LIFE IN RUPERT'S LAND

IN THE OLDEN TIME.

By James Stewart.

TWENTY-FIFTH PAPER.

We would then go into the men-' house where Mrs. Harcer would have a kettle of hot water ready for us to wash our nets which was immediately done and hung them up to dry, when we sat down to our meal of white fish By this time it would be about nine or ten o'clock at night, so we turned into bed to take a nap until about four o'clock in the morning when the same routine had to be gone through. This work, as I have said, was kept up until the middle of February. By this winter season of fishing we would have sufficient fish laid up in store to serve both men and dogs with provisions until the opening of navigation. The only difference between us and the dogs consisted rather in quantity than in quality. Our bill of fare was the same thing, the only difference being that a man got two whitefish a day, while each dog had only one, but both dogs and men were fed out of the same pile. The men at the post, therefore, had the luxury of two meals a day, while the dogs had only one. At that time, however, it did not seem to affect me very much, but now on looking back upon it I think that it was rather gruesome.

As I have said b fore, at the time I was at Beren's River I had a better opportunity of studying the Indian in his primitive state than at Norway House, where they are mostly converted to the Christian faith The Indians at Beren's River were just as nature made them, but I will not class them as uncivilized, because I cannot truthfully apply the term to a people whom I had learned to revere for their sense of justice and truthfulness.

I remember that at one time there was a certain converted Indian missionary of the Methodist church came to Beren's river on one of his canoe trips from Beren's river. His name was Peter Jacobs. While at Beren's River he wished to have some talk with the Indians who were encamped on the other side of the river. As our master was an excellent Indian scholar and could speak the Indian language fluently, Mr. Jacobs invited Mr. Cummings to accompany him. He, knowing my desire to get acquainted with the Indian manners and customs, invited me to accompany them, which I was glad to do.

Accordingly the three of us took a canoe and went across the river to where the Indians were encamped to the number of about sixty, about sixty or seventy adults and about two hundred children and about six hundred dogs. Mr. Cummings told the Indians that he had brought with him a man of their own Nation who wished to speak with them on the white man's religion, and begged them to give him a patient hearing, to which the Indians gave a grunt of assent. The Rev. Mr. Jacobs then began his oration by relating to them the account of the Noachic flood. He harangued them for some considerable time, the substance of which I, of course could not understand, not being versed in the Indian language, but I noticed Mr. Cummings smiling on several occasions.

It would appear from what I learned afterwards, that Mr. Jacobs himself had not been in perfect knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, and in consequence made some very serious blunders, one of which was that at the time of the flood Noah had four sons with him in the ark. The Indians, however, listened very attentively to his discourse and sat and smoked in silence. On our return Mr. Cummings ventured to ask Mr. Jacobs the name of Noah's fourth son, as he had forgotten it. Mr. Jacobs sat in thoughtful silence for some time trying to conjecture upin his brain the name required, till at length the truth seemed to dawn upon him that there were only three of them.

"Why," said he, "there were only three of them, what a fool I must be."

Mr. Cummings laughed at his mistake, but Mr. Jacobs took the matter quite coolly saying that the Indians did not know but that he was right, and perhaps would never know to the contrary.

Coming towards spring in the latter part of March I was sent along with Mr. Harper to look after the Indians and find out what their winter's catch of furs amounted to. We went on snowshoes as usual and had two trains of four dogs in each train. Our route lay across Lake Winnipeg to the west side, passing up the little Saskatchewan and by Fairford up to Lake Manitoba, and all the surrounding country We were absent about three or four weeks and visited several encampments of Indians We found that the Indians had made a good hunt and there was a goodly supply among them of beaver, mink, marten, otter and both red and silver foxes, with a sprinkling of furs of lesser value, such as lynx, badger, wolverine and skunk. We took very few of these with us, as these were in the palmy days of the Hudson's Bay Company, there being no opposition trader in those days, and that being the case we were sure that every skin would be brought into the post when navigation opened so that the Indians could come in with their canoes.

On our return travelling was very heavy on account of the snow beginning to melt so that during the day when the sun began to get warm the snow was reduced to a watery slush which filled our snow shoes making them very hard to lift this kind of travelling is apt to produce what is called snow shoe snowshoe sickness that is the sinews of the leg are apt to get cramped and gather up in a knot in the calves of the leg which is exceedingly painful. Another very annoying thing at this time of the year was snow blindness. Travelling all day with nothing but the glare of the sun upon the snow to look at tries the eyes very much, which is not felt much during the day, but when night comes, it is the very mischief. The suffering from that is something intense. I have been in a high fever with it, while I would roll in agony on the ground, with a feeling somehow that my eyes were full of hot burning sand.

On our retur on this trip while in the middle of Lake Winnipeg we were overtaken by a terrific snowstorm. The wind blew fiercely and the snow was falling thickly, no land could be seen for we could not discern six yards ahead of us. Thus being exposed to the fury of the tempest without shelter and not knowing which way to proceed, for we had lost our reckoning, our only alternative was to let things take their course and follow the dogs to wherever they might lead us. We therefore let the dogs go ahead and without driving them let them find their way. Thus we travelled through the blinding storm all day, with an intense cold, which we did not mind much as we kept ourselves tolerably warm by walking. The storm kept up all day and now darkness was coming down upon us, and we could not help beginning to think that we were rather in a bad way. But just about dark we struck land but what land we could not tell, but we were glad to see it nevertheless. We go up into the bush and hastily gathered a few dry sticks and made a fire with flint tinder and steel; we had no matches in those days.

We cooked a whitefish each of us, and thawed out one for each of the dogs, and then gathered more wood and made a roaring fire, while we gathered some pine brush and made our bed in the snow and lay down to rest. After lying down I could not help musing on the events of the day we had gone through great peril, and we did not know where we were, but this did not alarm me as I knew that if the sky was clear we should know that on the morrow but I could not help thinking of my home in far off Scotland. What would my dear father and mother, brother and sister think did they know the position I was in It was well they did not know. I had gone through perils on the briny deep, and now I found that there are causes of danger on land as well as on sea. On the morrow when we awakened up we found our selves on the Birch Islands, about half way between the little Saskatchewan River and Beren's River. The morning was clear and cold with very little wind so we hitched up our dogs and started for home about two o'clock in the afternoon. I must confess I was thoroughly exhausted, my limbs were stiff from so much snow-shoe tramping and I was thoroughly snow blind I had many trips on snowshoes before that but never such a hard one.

However, it is seldom that misfortunes come single and it was so in this case. We soon found I began to recover from the effects of this voyage, I had caught a malignant fever and a sore throat, consequent I suppose, upon the severe fatigues I had undergone. I was unable to swallow any nourishment, even if there was any to be had, but fish was the only thing available Mr. Cummings, poor man, was at his wit's end, and did not know what to do. The only medicine used in the service was Epsom Salts and I got a dose of it, but that did not seem to mend matters. I may here mention that the only medicine that came under my notice while in the service in the north, was Epsom Salts. It was administered on all occasions no matter what the disease might be. I was told, but I cannot vouch for the truth of it, that in some parts of the country if a man happened to sprain his foot while chopping wood a liberal dose of salts was administered.

In my case, however, the salts did no good, I lay in a state of utter suffering no one either to speak or move until a happy thought struck Mr. Cummings and he straightway sent for Lata-ka-koo, the great medicine man among the Indians. He promptly came and on his entrance I could not help trying to laugh at the fellow sick as I was. He was perfectly devoid of clothing except a striped cotton shirt and a few feathers stuck in a band tied around his head.

However he came and stood over me as solemn as an owl and after having surveyed me for some time walked out with a stately step and without saying a word to any body.

While revolving in my mind what was the meaning of this kind of action, my worthy doctor re-entered having in his hand a small wooden mallet together with a small stick cleft at end, with a small chip of flint stuck in the cleft. He seized hold of me and proceeded to roll up my shirt sleeve I now saw that he wanted to bleed me, but I was so weak I did not care even if I saw him making preparations to cut my head off. His companion, Mr. Waters, however, made an effort to stop him, but Mr. Cummings told him to let the doctor go on, which he did. He, with one hand set the point of lance upon my arm and then giving it a short blow with his little mallet the thing was done. The blood spurted out pretty freely, but for how long I could not tell as I fell over in a faint. On coming to myself I found the old Indian wrapping a bandage around my arm.

Whether my recovery was due to the treatment of the Indian I could not say, but next day my throat was much better and I was able to swallow a little food From that time I daily gained strength and was soon able to resume work again. I have had several attacks of quinsy since then, but none so bad as this one.

A boon to horsemen.—One bottle of English Spavin Lininiment completely removed a curb from my horse. It is a pleasure in recommending the remedy, as it acts with mysterious promptness in the removal from horses of hard, soft or calloused lumps, blood spavin, splints, curbs, sweeny, stifles and sprains.
